Beyond the Founder

Preparing the Next Generation to Lead

Tunde Bakare-Wilson

FREE SAMPLE

Chapter 1

A practical roadmap for founders who want their business to outlive them. Covers readiness assessments, mentoring, and the hard conversation about who leads next.

Every family has a story about the day something went wrong and nobody knew where to start. This chapter looks at succession and why it matters for continuity. Who in your family could run the business for 90 days? Reflect on this before moving on, and note one thing you could change this week.

Every family has a story about the day something went wrong and nobody knew where to start. This chapter looks at next-gen readiness and why it matters for continuity. Who in your family could run the business for 90 days? Reflect on this before moving on, and note one thing you could change this week.

Every family has a story about the day something went wrong and nobody knew where to start. This chapter looks at mentoring and why it matters for continuity. Who in your family could run the business for 90 days? Reflect on this before moving on, and note one thing you could change this week.

Every family has a story about the day something went wrong and nobody knew where to start. This chapter looks at succession and why it matters for continuity. Who in your family could run the business for 90 days? Reflect on this before moving on, and note one thing you could change this week.

Every family has a story about the day something went wrong and nobody knew where to start. This chapter looks at next-gen readiness and why it matters for continuity. Who in your family could run the business for 90 days? Reflect on this before moving on, and note one thing you could change this week.

Try this: Name one successor candidate and one skill they need to build this year.